Increase Public Housing to provide small-sized unit for single or married old couples and young people (single/married). I'm sure TAXing on capital gain on property (OTHER than primary residence) can lower the house price, but don't know why the HK government NEVER to take this easy step. It rather fight for land with public or private section to cause unnecessary disturbance to the society. This is also the fastest way to stabilize the house price.

Also, provide food and shelter to senior is better than giving out cash to ensure the money is well spent.

Food safety is a big concern.

There are lots of old buildings in HK that can be rebuild to higher tall apartments to provide housing for more people. Less politics is most important.

Provide more resources to English speaking people.
