the government must provide more support and resources for women or family to make people easy to have children. Although housing is one of the most important issue, support for mothers after giving birth is also important.

For example, there should be more mother and baby friendly facilities in the public (not changing dippers or breast feeding in toilet), more Nurse rooms must be provided. Also, since financial problems, most family's mother and father both need to work, and not all people have the money nor willing to give their new born baby to non-trusted people to take care of.

Therefore, more registered Baby Care centre (育嬰園) should be set up.

There are not enough Baby Care Centres in Hong Kong and the places are not distributed board enough. Although there are many individual problems leading to low birth rates in local Hong Kong people, the government must do something to make us feel comfortable to have baby. Thanks.
