

主旨:

Give Views

Comments:

As the health conditions of erderly peoples have been improving, it is natural to expect that they can achieve a higher retirement age. That's good for maintaining local manpower and productivity of the society.

The government should take a leading role to simply extend the retirement age of civil servants from 60 to 65 and to faciliate the private sectors to follow.