2 key barriers stopping families from have more children are:

- 1) High housing prices
- 2) Lack of places in well regarded schools

Unless you solve the 2 above issues, any policy to improve fertility, e.g. tax benefit, will be useless.

Policies that can increase supply of school places in well regarded schools include a) encourage more private and international schools be built, b) provide for means-tested scholarship to international schools and c) have more university places.
